

Faith

This second week of Advent has many different meanings, depending on which "source" you want to cite. I have chosen this week to represent faith. Faith is the real bottom line when it comes to Christianity. You either have it, or you don't.

Faith truly is the determining factor in a person's relationship with Jesus Christ. Without faith, there is no relationship. With true faith, the relationship is alive, it is vital and driving, it is what we ought to be living for. Until this kind of faith exists, a person is "playing" at being a Christian.
