

Unorthodox People

Isaiah 55:8-9

Most of humanity likes things to be predictable. They like to think that the “expected” is going to be what they experience. This is especially true when we look at people—far too often we see what we want to see, and not what God sees.

Three examples of how God often seems to make unorthodox choices when selecting people to serve Him. They are certainly not the only examples. Moses was a murderer, Peter denied even knowing Jesus, and Paul was the chief persecutor of the church.

It seems to me that God doesn’t exactly look at people the same way we do. It seems to me that when God looks at each one of us, He sees far more than just the ‘expected’ or the obvious. We should do the same...
