Being a Christian is more than _____

Back before experiencing God's call to enter full-time service in His name, I was guilty of falling into the trap of being a Christian for the one hour each week I was in church. That is not the way a disciple of Jesus Christ is meant to live. We are meant to be 168-hour a week Christians. There is never a moment we are not supposed to be living out our faith, and that means we are supposed to do just as Paul commanded Timothy, do the work. As ministers in the service of Christ the King, we are all called to do the work of an evangelist.

One act of obedience is better than one hundred sermons.
