A Last Message

Deuteronomy 32:1-3

In the Book of Ecclesiastes we read something that is very important to remember:

Ecclesiastes 3:1 (ESV) ~ For everything there is a season, and a time for every matter under heaven...

Every organism, and a church is a living organism, has both a beginning, and an end. Some here this morning were here at very nearly the first beginnings of this church, and now you are here at the end. But, do not think of this as a death. Let me explain why this is NOT a death:

The closing of Central Church is NOT a death —

Closing Central Church does not mean that God's call upon each of us is diminished —

We have always been a "small" church, but we were never ineffective —

Accept your reassignment —

Do not waste time looking for a perfect church. Do not waste time feeling sad or sorry that central Church will no longer be gathering. This is the season that the Lord has brought to us, this is the day that the Lord knew would come. Let us rejoice in the bonds of fellowship we have enjoyed for all these years and let us leave here today with an attitude of expectation for where the Lord will lead us all in the future.

Find your next assignment! Serve, love, give, engage, and commit to becoming a disciple who makes disciples no matter where God places you next!
